CARTE POSTALE.

The Quatab Minar. Kuth-ed-Din was a slave who raised himself to be Viceroy of Delhi when the Mussulmans took it, and later on was Emperor of Hindustan. Whether he or his son built it, here is a splendid monument of victory. A five-storied tower 240 feet high, 50 feet in diameter at the base, and tapering to 9 feet at the top. The three lower stories are red sandstone, the upper two faced with white marble.
